Agricultural Topics Discussed Yesterday's Session. Well-Known Washington People Enjoying Their Vacations.

Correspondence of The Evening Star. MANASSAS, VA., August 22, 1895 The Farmers' Institute convened in the court house at 10 o'clock a.m. The demand for a more general discussion of the topics suggested by the addresses and papers of yesterday called out this meeting. The exercises were opened by the choir singing a pleasing song. The chairman then announced that the official meeting closed with the address of Prof. Keffer last night in the M. E. Church. This was what might be called the "symposium of farmers.

He wanted a full and free expression." the members who were present in regard to the institute and the manner of its manis visiting her uncle, Captain E. Z. Steever, at Westminster Park, Thousand agement. He proposed that the institute should elect a chairman for this meeting, Mr. C. E. Stanford and his daughters as he was only chairman of the official Martha and Lizzie, have started for a three weeks' stay in Boston, Narraganset places of interest on New England coast.

Miss Mae Bielaski of Harlem has just returned from two weeks of camp life at Colonial Beach with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. John W. Craig have issued as he was only chairman of the official meeting, whereupon Mr. George C. Round was elected chairman. Mr. Round read a paper from Mr. A. P. Rowe of Greenwich on "What crop pays the best?"

Corn was, in the opinion of Mr. Rowe, the best crop to plant in Virginia. It gave the largest returns for work and money expended. His cost per barrel was estimated at 76 cents. This paper called out a varied discussion.

Then followed a paper, by R. Belches, on "The most speedy way to improve wasted land." His paper dealt with his subject very slightly, for he drifted into the money question—asking such questions as these. What is money? Purpose of its use? By whom created? Why created? Money was at the foundation of farming. First and vital importance to understand "money." He was followed by Major O. E. Hine of Falls Church. invitations for the marriage of their daugh-ter, Louise McChesney, to Mr. Harry O. Chamberlain Tuesday evening, September 3, at Gurley Memorial Church. The festivities at Atlantic City were enlivened on Wednesday evening by a musi-cale at the Hotel Rudolph, given by Miss Blanche Rueckert of Washington. A large audience was present and gave marked expression to its appreciation of the pro-Dr. and Mrs. John T. Winter left yesterday morning on a visit to Niagara Falls and Canada. lantic City, N. J., where he has spent the last eight weeks.

at the foundation of farming. First and vital importance to understand "money." He was followed by Major O. E. Hine of Falls Church.

He said he had no sympathy with the grumbling farmer. Farmers had no harder struggle than men of other callings. The farmer had many reasons for being happier than most other men. Why harp on hard dimes? There were always seasons of depression; they must come. These seasons came from overproduction. Then when the production ceased, the demand for products was created. There came a time when there seemed to be a turning point for a change the other way. The law of demand and supply regulated the "times" of the farmer. We seem to have arrived at the point when we were turning towards better times—turn to go forward and reach the equilibrium between consumption and production.

Farmers complain about the scarcity of money, and his efforts seem to tend toward getting money. Money is not scarce; there is plenty of money in the banks waiting "to let" to men who can give good security. Then followed a racy and interesting discussion on money, which made one think that some of the politicians of the county were on hand. But throughout there was the utmost good will manifested.

Col. Daniels of Gunston held the audience spell-bound for more than a half an hour in presenting a running history of the manner of our handling the question of money for the last hundred years. Wall street came in for its share of condemnation. The institute adjourned at 12:90.

Thus closed one of the most pleasant meetings of its kind ever held in the state. The occasion called out many of the very best men of the state—men of intelligence and experience. The audience was composed of the best men and women of the city and surrounding country, and the effects of the institute will undoubtedly sid in the encouragement of the farmer and better fesults in their industry. There was a pleasant gathering of young folks at the residence of Mr. and Mrs.Wm. Douglas, 432 H street northwest, Wednesday evening. Games were enjoyed until a late hour, when refreshments were served on the lawn, which was decorated with Chinese lanterns, flags and flowers. Among those present were the Misses Lottle Waters, Ethel Croxton, Chare Douglas, Sophie, Essie, Rena and Jennie Sanger, Emma Wagner, Emma Toeffert, Adeline Galier, Minna Ware, Agnes, Eisle, Oillie and Irene Jordan, Louise Rowan, Nellie Amos, Regina Watkins and Kathleen Noles, and Masters Eddie Wort, Paul Douglas, Mac and Clay Degraine. TO BE A MODEL. She Wanted to Leave Housekeeping and Pose for Pictures. From the Philadelphia Press.

Not very long ago while a prominent artist was busy at his easel, the brass knocker rapped three times and, rising, he opened the door. "Who is it?" he said, not very pleased at the interruption. "Do you vant a model?" was a response. He looked at her with the rapid glance of the man who knows the meaning of form and color and the value of every feature. Apparently there was nothing to recommend her. The face was not beautiful, the skin and features were coarse, there was no pomegranate on the lips, no rose petal on check, nor shell tints in the ear. The hair was a dusty, yellow gray, the eyes dull and heavy, the mouth and jaw thick and hard. All of this detail he saw as she passed through the door uninvited, "What are your recommendations?" he asked her, half sneeringly.

"I have a good figure," she answered

"I have a good figure," she answered promptly.

"Are you a professional model?" was the next query.

"I have never posed at all," she replied.

"I'm a housemaid. I read something in the paper about the lots of money the models made, and I thought I'd like it better than being out at service." made, and I thought I'd like it better than being out at service."

The artist looked at the young Irishwoman a moment, and, glancing about the room, wondering what to say to her, his eyes fell upon his half-clad model seated upon the stand. "Miss B—," he said, "will you tell this young woman about the life. She wants to be a model."

Miss B—, with an easy, natural movement, threw the end of her garnet velvet toga across her shoulders and gave the visitor such a lengthy description of the trials, hardships and troubles of a model's life in the studios that when she advised the artistically inclined housemaid "to go back to making beds and scrubbing and waxing floors," the latter concluded she had better "bear the life she knew than fly to those she knew not of," and took her departure as abruptly as she had come,
